Happy Mother's Day, Lulu

Stripes was working on a little project in the living room. A project that included flowers, chocolate, and a big present. Alley saw Stripes in the living room. "What you working on, Stripes?" asked Alley.

"It's Mother's Day, and I'm surprising Lulu with flowers, chocolate, and a Mother's Day present." said Stripes.

"Speaking of Lulu, where did she go? I've been looking for her all day."

"She and the others went to the Kinzville Academy to train. Even Oreo went with them."

"Oh. Well, let's hope it goes well." said Alley.

>A few hours later, everyone came back from the Kinzville Academy.

"Oreo, you did really well. I'm impressed." said Spark.

"Hi, guys." said Stripes.

"Stripes, what's behind your back?" asked Lulu.

"For you, my lovely lady." said Stripes as he gave her the flowers.

"Oh, they look pretty." said Hector.

"Yeah, thank you, Stripes." said Lulu.

"Wait, there's more." said Stripes. He then handed his girlfriend the chocolate.

"How did you know I love chocolate?" said Lulu.

"It was an educated guess. There's one more thing. Spark, Prancer, help me out here." said Stripes. The 3 Webkinz pushed the big present over to Lulu.

"Open it." said Stripes. She did, and there was lot of oranges in front of her.

"Uh, oranges? You got your girlfriend a bunch of oranges?" asked Bronta.

"Bronta, oranges are my favorite food. Thanks so much, Stripes." said Lulu.

"Happy Mother's Day, Mom. I actually got you a little something for you too." said Oreo. He handed his mother a photo of all of the Webkinz and their house with a sunny background.

"This is so cute. I love it. Thanks, Oreo." said Lulu.

"So, what are we going to do with all of these oranges?" asked Vixen.
